THE SABBATH BELLS.

The old man sits in his easy chair.

The old man sits in his easy chair,
And his ear has caugat the ringing
Of many c airch bells far and near,
Their own sweet music singing.
And his head sinks low on his aged brens;
While his thoughts far back are reaching
To the Subbath morns of his boyish days,
And a mother's sacred teachings,

A few years later, and lo ! the bells

A merrier strain are pealing,
And heavenward bore the marriage vows
Which his manhood's Joy were sealing.
But the old man's eyes are dimming now,
Asmemory holds before him
The sail, sail picture of later years,
When the tide of grief rolled over him.

When the bells are tolling for loved ones gone: For the wife, for the sons and daughters, Who, one by one, from his home went out, And down into death's dark waters. But the aged heart was still one joy Which his old life daily blesses, And his eyes grow bright and his pulses warm Neath a grandchild's sweet caresses.

But the old man wakes from his reverie,
And his dear old face is similing,
While the child with his serious eyes reads on,
The shabata hours beginning
Ah! bells, once more ye will ring for him,
When the heavenly hand shall sever
The chord of life, and his freed soul lites
